PROTEIN SHAKES & BARS

THE BEST PROTEIN BARS, POWDERS, AND DRINKS FOR ACNE

Did you know that your protein powder might be a huge trigger for your breakouts?

Why does Whey Protein give you acne?

- whey increases the production of a hormone called Insulin-Like Growth Factor 1 or IGF-1.
- insulin does is that it increases the production of sebum, which is an oily secretion of the sebaceous glands and is associated with the development of acne.
- it is also responsible for triggering the production of the androgen hormone
- androgen is the cause for a number of hormonal issues, including acne and hair loss. It over stimulates oil glands which can clog up your pores, thus creating a conducive environment for acne breakouts.
- messes with your ability to process blood sugar efficiently, which causes inflammation in the body, particularly your skin.
- Lactose intolerance leaves you with symptoms such as gas, bloating and diarrhea after you consume food or drinks that contain lactose, lack of absorbing nutrients with a long history of GI issues can also cause acne.

What are Plant-Based Protein Powders

This type of protein powder is just what it sounds like -- protein derived from plants. Just like other protein powders, not all plant-based versions are the same. But most have similar ingredients like seeds, rice, hemp, and peas.

Plant-based protein powders are free of allergens, gluten-free and absorbed quickly by the body. Most people can easily digest the ingredients found in plant-based powders including hemp, pea, rice, seeds, and quinoa. You may recognize these as some of the main sources of protein for vegans and vegetarians.

Many of the ingredients used to make plant-based powders contain essential vitamins, nutrients, omega3 fatty acids, and antioxidants. These ingredients also have a naturally pleasant taste, eliminating the need for flavor additives.

Digestive Health

We are living in a time where allergies and food sensitivities are reaching epidemic levels. From minor disagreements like gas and bloating to severe pain and possible death, these issues are no laughing matter. When it comes to traditional forms of protein supplements, the standards are full of triggers. Over half of the top eight allergens in the world make up the standard protein base: milk, eggs, soy and wheat, as well as, fish, shellfish, peanuts and tree nuts. When you drink something everyday and sometimes more than once, it is imperative that your body accept it without complaint.

Plant-based proteins are the perfect match for anyone facing digestive problems. They contain fiber and digestive enzymes, which help ease digestion and absorption, leaving your stomach relaxed and satisfied.

Nutrient Density

Nutrient density is the measure of how many nutrients a food has per calorie. Plant-based proteins are known for being very nutrient dense. This is one of the biggest differences between whey protein and plant-based protein. With plant-based protein you are getting all your protein from plant sources, but all these sources have a lot more than just the protein in them. Many of the sources have loads of essential vitamins and minerals

Acne Safe

PROTEIN SHAKES & BARS

Since whey protein is made from milk, it's lacking in a variety of nutrients. You, of course, get your calcium, your B-vitamins, and other vitamins and minerals, but its nutrient density isn't as high as plant-based protein.

For example, a 28-gram serving of brown rice protein powder has about 22 grams of protein, depending on the brand. On top of this, it also contains a good amount of healthy fats to help lower bad cholesterol. It's a good source of dietary fiber and is naturally hypoallergenic; ideal for almost any type of diet.

Plants are packed with fiber which is an essential part of a healthy diet. It keeps your digestive system running smoothly and helps you to feel fuller for longer. As plant-based protein powders naturally contain fiber, they help you feel fuller for longer as well as keep you regular. This is really important when it comes to both losing and maintaining weight.

What out for Artificial sweeteners to look out for include:

- Aspartame (Equal)
- Sucralose (Splenda)
- Saccharin (Sweet N Low)
- Neotame
- Acesulfame potassium

PROTEIN SHAKES & BARS

Nutritional criteria for the best protein bars

- 8 grams protein minimum
 - 15-20 grams of protein if you're looking to gain muscle.
 - 7-12 grams of protein for a satiating snack.
- 13 grams sugar maximum.
- 3 grams fiber minimum

Ingredient criteria for the best protein bars

- High-quality protein sources
 - Nuts, nut butters, grass-fed meats, egg whites, and seeds.
- Natural sweeteners
 - choose options with natural sources of sugar like cane sugar or fruit
 - Whole fruit (in comparison to fruit juice and fruit concentrate) is not considered an added sugar
- Whole-food ingredients
 - used to flavor or sweeten, the best protein bars only use whole food or natural ingredients (no artificial ingredients allowed).
- Healthy fats
 - Fats are essential for your body to absorb certain nutrients and they also help to keep you satiated. (avoid vegetable oils as fillers and binders)
- Low to no synthetic or isolated fiber
 - includes artificial sweeteners and sugar alcohols like maltitol, erythritol, and xylitol, and large amounts of synthetic fibers like soluble corn fiber or chicory root. (can cause bloating, gas, abdominal pain)

Acne Safe

PROTEIN SHAKES & BARS

- No sugar alcohols
 - Common sugar alcohols are mannitol, sorbitol, xylitol, lactitol, isomalt, maltitol and hydrogenated starch hydrolysates
 - advise against consuming large quantities of these ingredients. can cause gastrointestinal distress
 - Xylitol is low GI meaning it doesn't spike your blood sugar very high. It has a GI of 36 as opposed to sugar, depending on the type, has a GI of over 60.
 - Erythritol has a GI of less than 10. So do mannitol and sorbitol
 - Bear in mind, however, that not everyone tolerates them well. Xylitol and erythritol are easier on the digestive system than the others.
 - If you really need some sweetness, add fruit like 1/2 a banana.
